Editorial

As the class of '73, we are caught midway in the pendulum swing of time. While we were rally-winning freshmen, our predecessors were urged by the fire of revolt to new heights of group freedom, and as ideals are shifting to yet unknown areas, our class has turned to exploring the possibilities of personal development. Rather than totally uniting to obtain more rights, we have branched off in an effort to achieve greater knowledge and excellence, each in his own chosen field. I hope that this yearbook has fulfilled its mission, namely to picture the ranges of expression of this, the cult of the individual.
